

BIOGRAPHY

PATRICIA BRAVO

Patricia Bravo doesn't follow convention. She selected career opportunities which gave her an unvarnished, hierarchy-free, direct line of sight into the everyday impact leaders have on teams.

After earning an MBA and working her way up at companies acquired by Oracle and IBM, she landed at Starbucks, making an unusual choice. She turned down a promotion to serve people she cares for most, team members.

While navigating corporate life, she supported hundreds of students through a teaching side hustle. That defiance won her an Instructor of the Year award, landed her an invitation to publish research and opened doors to teaching undergraduates at University of Washington, Bothell and professionals at UCLA Extension.

She bucked convention again, starting her company Bravo For You, where she's become known for her human-centered empathetic leadership programs with clients like Sony Pictures, T-Mobile, Amazon and more.

PATRICIA BRAVO
Keynote Speaker

SAMPLE SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS

- In Person engagements at National Association of Women MBA's, American Academy of Audiology, HR conferences and Forte' reach hundreds of leaders
- Virtual engagements at PMO Impact Summit and HR M&A Conference reinforce my commitment to offer access to meaningful experiences

EXPERIENCE

- Earned MBA from Notre Dame and worked at numerous Fortune 500 companies before leaving Starbucks to start leadership development consulting firm. Clients include Amazon, T-Mobile and Sony
- Support emerging leaders by teaching undergrads at University of WA, Bothell and professionals at UCLA Extension
- Instructor of the Year award - icing on the cake